

You might be a Pagan if....

You have strong ties to the natural world – As Frank Lloyd Wright proclaimed, I believe in God I just spell it Nature.

You believe in an active Spirit world.

You don't believe in a Spirit world at all.

You are not sure if there is a Spirit world.

You believe that thoughts and beliefs create things.

You believe, like William Schulz, past-president of UU –that human beings are not rulers or even stewards of nature, but are co-creators with all living things

You believe in the Goddess.

You believe in many Goddesses and Gods.

You talk to trees and they talk back.

You believe that only your actions in this life matter.

You believe in reincarnation –that the energy that you are does not extinguish at death but passes to another being.

You believe there is a web of life that connects all living things.

You believe that you can harness energy with your intention/will and use it for a prescribed purpose.

You are not Christian, Islamic or Jewish (not of the Book- The Koran, Bible or Torah).

You believe that are responsible for your actions.

You believe that the universe supplies the energy to make things happen and your subconscious and conscious mind does the rest.

You believe that we can heal the breach between the spiritual and material

You believe that obstacles are learning opportunities sent from the spirit world

You believe that all things are connected

You believe that in paganism, beauty, pageantry, music, dance, dreams, myth and visionary art come together

You believe that it is what you do that is important – not some external dogma

You have total skepticism about even your own methods, myths and rituals.
